Synopsis: "No names, No Pack Drill" is a time-honoured expression used by sergeant-majors to assure the troops that there would be no attempt to identify and punish a culprit as long as he returned something he had taken. By careless logic the saying was extended by the troops to warn one another not to inform; and it became a ritual in which the one warned would repeat the phrase: "No names, no pack drill" It is this rogue's honour sense that the title of the plays invokes. This play inspired the Australian movie "Rebel" which starred Debbie Byrne and Matt Dillion

A young U.S. Marine goes AWOL in Australia

3 One-Act Plays

PLAY ONE: Drama

"Duchess On Thursday" By Ian Austin

Synopsis: A young man lures a well-known actress to an old house – which is not unfamiliar to her – to satisfy his weird ambition. Plenty of tension and shocks in this drama.

Boy                      Petar Grulovic
Woman                  Heather MacTavish

Director: Jim Kelly

PLAY TWO: Drama

"Stage Directions" By John Darlings

Synopsis: A play full of words but with no conversation. 3 siblings meet following the funeral of their parents. The atmosphere is cold.

Richard                Anthony Manning
Ruth                    Kath Ward
Ruby                    Donna Priddle

Director: Peter Rosier

PLAY THREE: Comedy

"Pastiche" By Nick Hall

Synopsis: The setting is a late-night supper involving the Lord of the Manor & the Showgirl, with this little soirée being constantly interrupted by the Lady of the Manor &, of course, the Butler.

Lady Alexandra      Maureen Coleman
Medford                Petar Grulovic
Sir Peter                John Atkinson
Viola Vionnese        Michelle Stocks

Director: Heather MacTavish
